Cottonwood revamped...

Spencer Edmunds of El Cajon and technician Jeff Uzelec, of San Diego (seated) make carts available to players at Cottonwood Golf Course. This is no small job: on weekends, as many as 450 golfers board the new electric carts.

Golf course has new owners

By Norrie West

RANCHO SAN DIEGO —Everyone who played golf in this county knew the name well—Cottonwood. Well, that is from 1962 when it opened, until the 90's, when the name changed to Rancho San Diego.

Now, just recently, the "Cottonwood" has come back, so it is now "Cottonwood at Rancho San Diego".

That's because there is new ownership and new management by a group called Western Golf Resources who bought out Tomio Nitta and other Japanese investors who purchased the 36-hole facility in 1990.

Now, besides a new name, there are 163 new electric carts replacing the old gas-burning vehicles that were always breaking down or wouldn't run at all.

"That makes all the difference," said Rick Sprouse, the new director of golf at Cottonwood. "People know when they go out o the course they won't find themselves stranded half-way around. Not only that, the gas carts were noisy and smelly. The electric are neither."

So, now on weekends at least 460 golfers travel either Ivanhoe's 6500 yards or Monte Vistas's 6300 in comfort, and confidence and some less on weekdays.

The whole thing is like old home week for Sprouse, who was Cottonwood's head professional from 1976 to 1990, when Nitta's group took over.

Actually Rick started at Cottonwood in 1962 when it opened, working in such jobs as trash boy, and cart boy, finally graduating to the golf shop, under the leadership of Cliff Crandall, one of San Diego's legendary golf professionals.

Fortunately the two courses were in good shape when Western came in. "I'll match our greens with those of any other courses in the county," Sprouse said. "Gerry Ruiz, our superintendent, does a really great job. We're lucky to have him."

It will take time to get everything going as it was in the old days, but the men's club now has 400 members, and there is still a very active ladies group also.

Maybe it is "back to the future" at Cottonwood, Sprouse said.

Water line construction authorized along Route 125

By Joe Naiman

The Padre Dam Municipal Water District wanted to take advantage of freeway construction relocations to improve its infrastructure.

San Diego Association of Governments obliged at its April 23 meeting and approved the addition of the project at the water district's expense.

SANDAG's board of directors, acting as the San Diego County Regional Transportation Commission, authorized execution of a contribution agreement with the Padre Dam Municipal Water District for installing a waterline as part of the construction on Highway 125.

Padre Dam has agreed to fund the additional design work and construction cost associated with the recycled water line, which would be located along Grossmont College Drive over the new freeway segment

Construction of the freeway will also necessitate the relocation of some of the local facilities owned by Padre Dam.

The freeway construction funding will include the cost of the relocations. Padre Dam has requested that a new waterline, which will carry recycled water, be included in the freeway construction contract..

The design consultant for SANDAG will perform the design of the recycled water line while Caltrans will administer the construction contract.

The authorization of the contribution agreement was passed on the consent agenda.

Local student performances appreciated at Masons' dinner

By Jake Christie

For the past 45 years, Lemon Grove Masonic Lodge No. 736 has been holding a "student leadership recognition dinner" for the schools in the Lemon Grove School District. In return, the student council members and their teachers perform skits based on the school activities during their council terms.

As with every year since 1960, the Lemon Grove Masonic Center was the scene for the event.

Unlike past years, however, the event was held up briefly with a moment of silence for the victims of the Littleton, Colo. tragedy.

Second- and third-grade teacher Ellen Tannehill was given an award for her years of work at Golden Avenue School, as was school secretary Wynn Degan of San Altos. Craig Lake said "We have the best school district in the world."

After the speeches and awards, the schools performed their skits.

Golden Avenue School, represented by Principal Dr. William Baucher and sponsors Susan McKeown and Judy Timmins with students (President) Nancy Vega;

Vice President Brittnee Williams; Secretary Carissa Honaker; Treasurer Jennifer Telles; and Fire Marshall Marissa Aymar, went onstage and recited all the activities their student council has accomplished this year.

The next two schools, Monterey Heights and Vista Mesa did the same. The students of Mount Vernon performed a "Name That School" sketch where all the contestants answered "Idaho potatoes" to every question, even though the answer was "Mount Vernon School."

San Altos School, represented by Principal Dr. Donn Griffitts

East County sees crime drop, SANDAG report says

By Joe Naiman

The San Diego Association of Governments has released its annual crime report, and the county's 11 percent decrease in FBI indexcrime per 1,000 population is in line with East County statistics.

"1998 Crime in the San Diego Region" reports a countywide crime drop from 43.7 crimes per 1,000 residents to 39.0 crimes per1,000 people. It reports a 24 percent drop in the crime rate in Alpine, a 17 percent decline in Spring Valley, a 14 percent decrease in La Mesa, 13 percent drops in El Cajon and Lemon Grove. The crime rate in Lakeside was down 2 percent while crime in Santee rose 1 percent.

The county's 11 percent drop occurred both for violent crimes (homicide, rape, aggravated assault, and robbery) and property crimes (burglary, larceny, motor vehicle theft) covered by the FBI crime index. The data does not include offenses such as illegal drug use and sales, vandalism and graffiti, arson, or child abuse.

The violent crime rate for Spring Valley dropped 33 percent from the previous year while Lakeside saw a 26 percent drop. Lemon Grove saw a 10 percent decrease in violent crime while violent crime was down 8 percent in Alpine. In El Cajon the violent crime rate was down 2 percent. The number of violent crimes per 1,000 population rose five percent in La Mesa and 11 percent in Santee during 1998. Property crimes were down 27 percent from the previous year in Alpine, 15 percent in La Mesa and El Cajon, 14 percent in Spring Valley, and 13 percent in Lemon Grove. Santee's property crime rate was unchanged from the previous year while Lakeside saw a 2 percent increase in property crimes. Numerically El Cajon saw 4,181 FBI index crimes, La Mesa had 2,302, Lemon Grove had 919, Santee had 1,357, Alpine experienced 593, Lakeside suffered 1,073, and Spring Valley reported 1,805 crimes. The violent crimes consisted of 14 homicides, 93 rapes, 465 robberies, and 1,273 aggravated assaults. El Cajon had 785 of the violent crimes with Spring Valley noting 259 such incidents La Mesa reporting 243. Lemon Grove had 162 violent crimes, Lakeside reported 173 such crimes, and Alpine recorded 98.

There were also 65 arsons, which are not covered in the FBI Crime Index, in East County in 1998.

St. Madeleine Sophie's Center high on disabled vehicle grant priority list

By Joe Naiman

Transportation without a private vehicle is difficult in the rural areas of San Diego County. The good news for the elderly and disabled in East County is that such difficulty places St. Madeleine Sophie's Center high on the priority list for grant applications for vehicles.

The federal TEA 21 transportation act provides funding to non-profit organizations to purchase vehicles for transport of elderly or disabled persons. The money is allocated to the states, which accept applications from non-profit service agencies.

In California approximately $6.5 million will be available for the program this year. The awards are made based on scores received from local and state review of the applications, and under state regulations the San Diego Association of Governments is responsible for scoring the applications from San Diego County.

SANDAG designated its Subcommittee for Accessible Transportation (SCAT) as the regional scoring committee. SCAT reviewed 32 applications for vehicles or related equipment from 14 agencies and assigned scores based on a state formula allowing points for the need for the equipment, the extent to which existing public services are not appropriate for the needs of the agency and its clients, the effectiveness of the proposed service, the ability of the applicant to fund and manage the service, and the extent of coordination with other non-profit transportation services.

The projects in San Diego County totalled $1.48 million. Three East County agencies applied for grants: St. Madeleine Sophie's Center asked for three $46,500 grants consisting of a van replacement with a radio and a $4,528 grant requesting computer equipment, Mesa Valley Grove Senior Program requested $65,000 for a bus for service expansion and $56,000 for a bus replacement, and Developmental Services Continuum requested $43,000 for a van replacement.

The priority system gave 92 points to a each of the four applicationsfrom St. Madeleine Sophie's Center. One project in the county received 93 points, but no other grant application had as high a score as the St. Madeleine proposals.

The service expansion bus request for Mesa Valley received 84 points, ranking it 14th amongst the proposals, although the bus replacement only scored 69 points to be ranked 28th of the 32 applications.

The application from Developmental Services Continuum received 77 points, placing it 26th.

EDITORIAL

An easy answer?

Upon hearing the terrible news from Littleton, Colorado last week, the big question throughout the nation was — why? Why did two teenage boys decide to commit such violence and atrocities on their fellow students, teachers and high school? Why did 14 teenagers, and a well-liked teacher die?

The incredible amount of news coverage gives evidence that the people of our nation are looking for an answer — and all the experts are struggling to come up with a convincing one. And the answers that come seem to ring hollow. The "experts" point to "troubled," alienated youth, a high divorce rate, guns, depression, psychology and the "stresses" of the times. But really these are all only consequences of the main problem.

It seems that we are reading the same stories over and over again and the only constant we can count on is the fact that the stories continue to get worse.

But the only real answer to the "why" is simple. It is one that too many in government, from the White House to local school boards, have refused to accept. Intellectuals and professionals have sought every answer but the obvious — God is gone. We believe that the answer to all the school violence of late can be traced to a trail of court decisions dating back to the end of World War II — inch by inch, God, and his standards of justice based morality, have been kicked out of our public schools. It may surprise some of our readers that we as a newspaper can be so "religious" by actually referring to God in a believing manner — but this too is a testimony to how far our nation has lost its way.

Public schools have become a place in our country where everything seems to be tolerated — except God. How can we expect our children to truly understand what is right and wrong when the Fifth Commandment — Thou Shalt Not Kill — is not even allowed to be posted where children learn. Yet video games and movies geared to those same youth have become increasingly violent depicting bloody deaths in every way, shape, or form — and this is considered by the same as "free expression."

To be truly literate in western culture, religion needs to be allowed to be taught and expressed. Too many children today have no idea that religion played a key role in the founding and development of this nation. God is being erased from our history for our next generation, and what is he being replaced with? And all during this process, we as a people have sat back and accepted it — now we are facing the consequences.

We have bought into the wrong definition of the First Amendment. It says "freedom of religion" not "freedom from religion." For more than 150 years the First Amendment protected people of faith — all faiths — from the government. But today it is used to protect the government from faith.

The founder of the modern public school system, Horace Mann upon the onset of what was then called "common schools," said that public schools were needed to bring reverence and respect for God and one another. He said without it we (as a society) will simply produce "savages." When we remove God and morality from our children's lives, should we be surprised that we have lived up to Horace Mann's worst fears?

We have bought into a new definition of the First Amendment that allows our children to be exposed to everything but God. Civil libertarians believe that public acknowledgement of our Creator can not be done in a public school setting. But sadly, it is done now in a funeral service for the dead children in Littleton. Ironically, most everyone respects this expression public faith.

In this newspaper, whenever God's name is brought up in a letter to the editor or anywhere else in these pages, we know we will hear from people who find his name offensive. That is their right and we understand and protect it. But we always hear the same — some quote or observation about all the people who have been killed or the atrocities that have been committed over the centuries in the name of God or religion. We simply ask, when will these same individuals document all the atrocities and the killings that have occurred from a no God perspective? Or how about all the atrocities that have taken place in our less civilized state when our concepts of God and eternal consequences for our actions were quite limited?

It is time for good people to speak out for what is right for our youth. We as adults need to take responsibility and make changes today. It is time for our leaders to understand that our very future is at stake. It is not a time for being quiet. It is a time for action. It is also a time for accountability. We have nailed tobacco companies for selling death to the youth market. What about Hollywood? Whatever happened to Tipper Gore's crusade against violent lyrics in rock music? Does one lose their convictions when one's husband moves from state politics to the national level where Hollywood's support is needed?

The silence is deafening. A new cry needs to be heard. New leaders are needed that understand conviction and courage. It is time for us as a nation to take back our youth and our schools. Absolutes need to return. Which moral absolutes will we choose to teach? Let's start with principles common to all faiths: 1) Do no harm to anyone. 2) Do good whenever possible. 3) Treat others as you would wish to be treated. 4) Be responsible, respectful and kind. 5) Watchout for others and help them to do so also.

These are basic and foundational to a civilized society. Let us remember Littleton as the turning point for our society. It is our children who are at stake.

PG PERSPECTIVES

Looking for lost things

By Phillip Giannangeli

There's an old adage that maintains confession is good for the soul. It turns out that confession may also be beneficial for the body as well. At least if the confession takes the form of the written word. So sayeth Newsweek, (April 26, 1999) in its Focus on Your Health page. I must confess I was somewhat skeptical about such an assertion as I read the article. But then I thought perhaps my penchant for penning confessions of deep dark secrets may prove, in the long run, to be beneficial my health. That's something I'd surely be interested in, I thought. I'll tell you the facts and we'll see where, if any place, this theory goes.

According to Newsweek, "Confessional writing has been around at least since the Renaissance, but new research suggests that it's far more therapeutic than anyone ever knew." Newsweek cited a study published in JAMA (Journal of the American Medical Association) to make the point. That study found writing can "help alleviate symptoms of asthma and rheumatoid arthritis." Again, I must confess, I had my doubts.

Another study, also reported in JAMA, involved college students and writing. This study was not conducted entirely in the confessional camp, however. One group of students wrote stuff about trivial things (dorm room appearance) while the other group dealt with real trauma (as opposed to dorm room trauma). After these groups had been involved in the writing exercises for a while, the group writing abut traumas visited the campus health clinic 50 percent less that the group writing about trivia. This, I have to say, worried me. I'll explain later.

Reading further in the article I discovered yet another study. This one found that "writing increased the level of disease-fighting lymphocytes circulating in the bloodstream." These disease-fighting lymphocytes things could actually be measured. No guess work. The article didn't specify, however, the substance or style of the writing that was causing this increase. It could have been trivial, confessional, a treatise, a letter to the editor, or just your ordinary shopping list.

There was even more research mentioned in the article. In preliminary stages of research, there seems to be evidence to show that blood pressure can be lowered by the simple act of writing. Ah ha! It's obvious: "It's the writing, stupid." Confessional writing seems to be secondary to just plan writing, although writing about trivial matters does seem to be the least effective.

All of this brings me to my big concern. For the past five years I have been writing PG Perspectives. I know some of you may think that any concern I have pales when placed next to your five years of suffering. But as I said earlier, I do have a major concern.

For much of these last five years, I have laid my soul bare on many occasions (computer/technology-challenged, newly discovered phobias, my addictions to chocolate and bubble gum). I've done so in a way that might be described as the trivializing of some of the substantial inner turmoil I have roiling inside of me.

All of which makes me wonder. Because of the way I've written all these years, have I put me at risk? If nothing else, could it be likely that I'm not as healthy as I could have been because of a few inept words or tasteless ideas? Who'd a thought writing could have such an impact.

Advertising costs...

Editor:

Re: Oscar ad rates hit $1 million mark. Listed among those companies which will advertise at the $1 million dollar rate for a 30-second spot was AT&T.

In my opinion, AT&T is about as close to being a public utility as the San Diego Gas & Electric Company, for example. Public utilities should not be allowed to spend uncontrolled amounts of money on advertising. It constitutes an outrageous insult to the consumers. Advertising costs of all companies are passed on to the consumers in prices or service rates.

Somehow, such practices must be contained. Other than utilities, consumers have a choice of whether or not to do business with the big spenders.

Public transportation...

Editor:

If drivers cannot afford auto insurance they should use public transportation.

That is "low cost" auto insurance at it's finest.

SAN DIEGO—In honor of Mother's Day, the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) will host a gala art auction to raise funds for the group's volunteer activities. Featuring food and entertainment, as well as art, "Picture Perfect" will be held at 1:30 p.m., May 9 at the San Diego Marriott in Mission Valley. Exclusive editions of graphics, oil paintings and water colors by award-winning artists will be available at the "Picture Perfect" celebration.

Funds raised at the event will support the 1,600 volunteers — all over 55 — who contribute more than 350,000 hours annually to help make San Diego a better place to live. Partially funded by grants, RSVP is a program that needs private contributions to help pay for volunteer transportation, training, insurance and recognition efforts. There are nearly 300 local organizations that depend on RSVP volunteers.

Some of the institutions that rely on RSVP are the Aerospace Museum, the Humane Society, UCSD Medical Center, senior centers around the county and both the sheriff's department and California Highway Patrol.

The County's Aging and Independence Services coordinates RSVP. Any adult over age 55 in San Diego County is eligible to participate as an RSVP volunteer. Each volunteer is expected to serve four hours per week.

For further information about the fund-raiser or the program, one may call 694-5128.

Greeting Sports fans....

Sports Beat

By Greg Eichelberger

Hello again friends, and welcome to the column that let's YOU choose the news, just like Craig Klein of La Mesa, who sent in this tidbit: "On the local Little League scene, the Vista La Mesa Wolfpack won their eighth game, 13-8, to remain in first place in the Minors division. Starting pitcher Andrew Klein (who also happens to be my son) was awarded the game ball by coaches Randy Clark and Dan Sandoval. Catcher Jamie Sandoval (Dan's child) and Gavin Clark (Randy's kid) teamed up on a great put-out on a stolen base attempt, while Chris Hammett was solid at second base. Martin Torres pitched the final inning in relief, and brothers Garrison and Isaac Taylor continued to run at will on the base paths."

Also, for all you Tony Gwynn fans out there, be aware of the new Tony Gwynn-Mobile, called 'Road To 3000 And Beyond.' It's a mobile museum parked in section D2 of the stadium lot during each home game. It will also travel to the 1999 All-Star Game in Boston, just like Tony (most likely). Once inside, check out his Gold Gloves, Silver Bats (denoting National League batting titles), All-Star rings, baseball cards, and more.

Admission is a donation to charity. It was awesome!" Thanks for YOUR donation to this column, Craig. El Cap girls basketball coach, Sam Mottershaw, resigned his post last week to take the assistant coach's position at the University of San Diego. Mottershaw led the lady Vaqueros to Grossmont League titles in 1997 and '99, as well as the CIF finals this past season.

"I had some great people to work with," he said. "Not only athletes, but also many outstanding students." If the San Diego Gulls are going to collect their fourth straight Taylor Cup title, they will have to do something few teams in professional sports have EVER done — win a seven-game series after dropping the first two AT HOME. In fact, it's only been done twice, the last time by the 1986 New York Mets. This isn't the time of year, and the Tacoma Sabercats are not the kind of team to test history, but after two tough losses (4-0 and 3-2) on home ice, the Gulls have their proverbial skates to the wall and will need to pull off a huge miracle in Washington this week.

A few weeks ago, I failed to mention a local student, Lori Mariso of Helix High, who was chosen as "Prep Athlete of the Week" in the girls softball category. Mariso went 9-19 during the team's trip to Nevada in late March, scoring the winning run in three different games and helping her mates win the Fred Davidson Memorial Tournament.. Helix, whose nickname is the Highlanders, along with Grossmont (Foothillers), El Capitan (Vaqueros), Valhalla (Norsemen), and Santana (Sultans), are just a few of the more imaginative prep team sobriquets.

No offense to the others, but the Braves, Eagles, Matadors and Monarchs just don't send the imagination soaring. But there are some college teams that have REALLY bizarre nomenclatures, such as the Imperial Valley (California) College Arabs, Centenary (Louisiana) Gentlemen, the Heidelberg (Ohio) Student Princes, the Whitman (Washington) Missionaries, the Thomas Jefferson (Pennsylvania) Medics, the Whittier (California) Poets, and the St. Joseph's (Maine) Monks, among others.

Did you know that professional baseball teams constantly violate Rule 3.09? That's the one that says, "Players of opposing teams shall NOT fraternize at any time while in uniform." Go to a Padres' game and see how many do, though. In fact, many of our local high school squads keep that statute better than pro teams do. Another ignored regulation is from Rule 8.04, which states that, "When the bases are unoccupied, the pitcher shall deliver the ball to the batter within 20 seconds after he receives the ball. Each time the pitcher fails to do this, the umpire shall call 'Ball.'" Anyone who's ever sat through a three-and-a-half-hour game, can attest that there's a fat chance of THAT rule ever taking effect.

These and other amazing (albeit useless) sports facts are only available to readers of this newspaper, and, more specifically, this column. That, plus you can submit items, as well. To do this, just dial your rotary phone to 390-2975 (or E-mail ikeforum@juno.com, just like Craig Klein did), and I'll put it in. That's my pledge of freshness and quality. Until then, have a great sports week.

Quirky characters shine in Lamplighters' 'The Shop At Sly Corner'

By Diana Saenger
Weekender Editor

Quirky characters portrayed by good performances in the Lamplighter's The Shop at Sly Corner offer the audience entertainment and a chance to do a little detective work.

Descius Heiss, played very authoritatively by Dave Rethoret runs a local antique shop with his sister Mathilde. Antiques, and his daughter Margaret, are the loves of Descius' life. But when his assistant Archie Fellows discovers a long kept secret and wants to blackmail Descius to help win the favor of Margaret, Descius is in threat of losing everything he loves.

Justin Duke is fun and evil as Archie and when he gets his—the audience is ready.

Kristen MaCleod locks on her character with a sweet and sincere performance. Her life is as treasured as one of her father's antiques. She's engaged to the dashing and charming Robert Graham (David Cochran), enjoys playing music, and thanks to her father's growing bankroll has a nice future to look forward to.

Discovering who done it in this clever intrigue by Edward Percy isn't necessary since that's revealed. But will the murderer be caught?

Most of the cast is making their debut at Lamplighter's but all are seasoned theater performers and give credible portrayals. Joan Deal is Margaret's worried friend who only wants what's best for her friend.

Lois Corbett wears two hats in the production, she plays the comical and fidgety sister of Descius and is also the theater's costumer. Cochran as Robert is swoon-ing-ly romantic as the fiancée who protects Margaret. Honey Mark, as Mrs. Catt the housekeeper, steals the show with laugh after laugh. Her ailments and oblivious nature provide a comedic balance to the angst of the scene.

Other performers include Corder Morris, Stephanie Hubbard and John Elliott. The steady and very capable hand of director Joe Nesnow is clear and present in this fine production. The stage setting is quite authentic and a visual delight. The Shop at Sly Corner, Lamplighter's Community Theatre, 18053 University Ave., La Mesa, now - May 16. 464-4598.

'Pushing Tin' features mid-air, mid-life collisions

By Diana Saenger
Weekender Editor

Everyone has heard about air traffic controllers and throughout each day thousands of people's lives actually depend on them. In Pushing Tin, a clever script based on a magazine article about two air traffic controllers, we get to see what they actually do. And it's frightening.

Nick Falzone (Cusack) is a controller with control. He organizes the blips on his radar screen like a fine tuned video game. While fellow controllers often angst when things heat up—like when two planes are on a collision course, Nick calmly guides them away from each other. His life seems to be in perfect order as well; house in the suburbs, kid, and charming wife Connie who bends with his profession as do the wives of the other controllers.

When Russell Bell (Thornton) replaces a departing controller, Nick has competition for the first time. Reserved, cool, and a little odd, Russell has an impressive record as a controller, and in the first battle of their skills on the radar screen, makes toast of Nick.

Thornton, looking slimmed down and revamped, needs no revamping of his talent. Like a chameleon he's able to slide into the seat as a steady and professional controller then at the office party turn into an unpredictable and icy challenge that drives Nick over the edge. Classified by director Newell as speaking, looking and thinking laconically, and just what he wanted for the character of Russell, Thornton's performance is the joystick of this film.

Rivalry between Nick and Russell soon spread into other aspects of their lives. Nick is drawn into an affair with Russell's wife (Jolie) and his guilt drives him to believe Russell is having an affair with Connie.

The macho battle of wills spills over into the traffic control room and Nick suddenly finds he's losing everything in life that means something to him. Cusack is terrific in his performance hitting every emotion right on target.

The script goes a little off track about an hour and half into the story, but great performances by the entire cast keep the audience rooted to the finale. Blanchett, the academy-award nominee for her role in Elizabeth, is almost unrecognizable as the zany and adorable housewife Connie.

Angelina Jolie keeps up the mystique of her husband Russell's character in her own fine performance as his wife. Instantly admired by the controller crew, she's drawn to Nick—or does she use him in her own seductive game with Russell? Pushing Tin pushes the envelope of conquest and good performances.

with sponsors Jennifer Murphy and Susan Nylund and students Aireen Tantianngco, Katrina St. Aubin, Sara Schaefer and Eric Domby, unrolled a banner with their school's name on it while reciting their year long activities.

San Miguel School was represented by Principal Virgina Horowitz and sponsors Cindy Cantor and Kimberly Sowvlen with Co-Presidents Annastasha Black and Julia Solomon. Vice President Gerald Cotten; Secretary Kniela Kyle; Treasurer Kristina Cotton and co-publicity persons Lindsay Bordine and Nicole Hansen, did their own take on the "Hollywood Squares" TV program. The students mimed various famous celebrities and their answers were oriented to their school.

The last two schools each took wildly different approaches to get their message across. Lemon Grove Middle School mocked the "Mighty Morphin' Power Rangers" with their sketch of a super student council who is commanded — by their instructor, who wore a box over her head to ape the computer in the show — to convince a student to join, After a few seconds of soul searching, she did, while the super council danced around.

Palm Middle School did a mini musical revue on the hallway signs the student council makes for upcoming events. The students sang about the signs using the "Mickey Mouse Club" theme song, some tunes from "The Wizard of Oz," and the theme from an Arbor Day Foundation public service announcement that runs on Saturday morning television.

Like most events where children perform for adults, the audience ate it up. Cameras clicked throughout the performance, and the friends of the performers applauded wildly and hooted after each sketch. The performers received certificates of appreciation from the Masons.
